Glear Complexions By a Little Care

REMOVING SUMMER FRECKLES AND SUNBURN.

Some Simple Directions for Self-facial Treatment Right at Home.

(Copyright, 1895, by Diame de Morny.)
Those of my readers who are blessed with skins "as clear as morning roses newly washed with dew" can but faintly imagine the wretchedness of the girl or woman who, through no fault of her own, a wakens every day of her life to the sickening realization that she is unsightly, often really repulsive, because of a disfiguring skin ailment. I suppose I have seen and treated as many bad cases of skin diseases as any one other person in this country during the past fifteen years, and the result of my experience is that all skin diseases may be cured where there is no cherited taint, and that in even those unortunate cases the complexion may be

FRECKLES ARE CLEAN BUT UGLY. The least offensive of all pigmentary discolorations is lentigo, or frockles. Certainly these brown, oval-shaped spots dotted about the face and hands are not pretty, but they do not look unclean as blackheads do, nor do they reflect disease as scrowing spingles must, but they are disagreeable and unpleasant. Freekles are divided into two classes. Summer freekles, which usually fall to the left freckles, which usually fall to the lot of fair skinned, light or asburn-haired girls, and are produced almost instantly on exposure to strong light, disappearing in a little while if the subject remains within doors or in the shade.

I make this statement despite the testimous of the eminent professor of Dermatology, Dr. Hebra, of Vicana, who positively declares that neither strong sunlight nor sharp widds, nor the two combined will produce freekles. Vicana freekles may be able to resist a Vienna freckies may be able to resist a Vienna san, but Yankee freckies, such as I have had principally to encounter, are beyond dispute brought to the surface of the skin by intense sunlight and frequently by strong, bitting winds. The other form of freckies is called cold or winterfreekles. These never disappear except through external agencies and then est treatment is as follows: Frequent athing with pure soap and water, the use of the scrubbing brush as advised in Beauty Talk, No. 1, and a dry friction of the skip carried to an extent a little short of irrita-tion. The advantage of friction is not only that it assists in cleansing the skin but excites the cutaneous circulation. I have seen many and many a freckied face scrubbed and rubbed clear of all stains without other aids, but there are many simple remedies which will hasten the cure. The most effective of these to be used in connection with the scrubbing and dry friction are a cream or pomade to use at night just before retiring and a wash to be used during the day. The cream is made

This pounde is easily absorbed by the skin, and is excellent not only in the treatment freckles, but also for any of the lighter skin cruptions which frequently aunoy giris between the ages of fourteen and eighteen. In the morning wash the ointment carefully out of the skin and apply the following lotion. Repeat the application of the lotion several times through the day:

FORMULA FOR LOTION. Liquor of potassa . . . . 1 fluid ounce Distilled water . . . . . 19 ounces Mix, pour lute a bottle and keep closely stoppered. There is but one way to take away obstinute or cold freckles, and that is to gently remove the discolored skin. The following remedy for removing freckles was published in the Medical Record some time ago. I have tried it innumerable times, with entire success in every case. The advantage of this preparation is in the fact that it contains no corrosive sublimate, which is the chief regredient in all the much exploited freckle removers, bleaches, etc., ou the market:

Blackheads are not only unsightly but they are really inexcusable, because they are evidences of unciteatiliness. Blackheads, or flesh worms, as they are still more vulgarly called, are an obstruction of the sebaccous glands or skin outlets. The secretions which should be expelled through these glands harden and clog the outlet. They are only in their nature and attract dust, which attaches itself to the point of each tiny obstruction, growing larger and blacker each day. There is but one rational way of treating blackheads, all other theories to the contrary. They must be gently forced out without Blackheads are not only unsightly but

Red noses are certainly most unattractive Red noses are certainly most unattractive and I always feel so sorry for the girl or woman with the fiery red nose. In many cases dyspepsia is the cause; and the rednosed girl is also a victim of cold feet and hands and of impoverished blood. Tight lacing, tight shoes, anything which impedes the circulation will produce red noses. Exercise is what we all need—fat and thin, are not weak that the red noses.

daily how they may prevent getting sin-burned. I am always inclined to give the old woman's advice to firer daugher who was convinced that it would some day be her fate to be drowped; "Louisa, don't you never go near no water and you can't hever get drowned." Really the only pre-ventative excites sunbarn is to stay in the shade and that is martyrdom to the eman-cipated woman. It is, be wever, quite pos-sible to keep your skin relatively white and fair by a little care. Try the following plan for tan and sanbarn. Every night before retiring, after washing your face therough-ity, apply the following cream, unless you have some very nice emofilient of the same general nature, which will do quite as well. CAMPHOR CREAM FOR SUNBURN. CAMPHOR CREAM FOR SUNBURN.

Melt in a hot water bath. Take out of the bath and stir in while cooling, a few drops at a time. Perfume with a few drops of otto of rose. This will be found very heating for any slight skin irritation and will almost instantly relieve the burning sensation produced by either the sun or wind. In the morning after bathing and at any convenient time during the day use the eider flower lotion (formula given in this paper), and if you have an hour of privacy during the day, apply the camphor cream and keep it on your face and neck as long as possible.

Board of Managers Meet and Discuss Plans for a New Chapel. The board of managers of the Presbyterian Alliance met in regular session yes terday afternoon in the rooms of the Y.

In the absence of the president, Hon. John W. Foster, the Hon. Charles Lyman The greater part of the time was consumed in discussing the ways and means of raising the necessary funds to commence and complete the chapel which it is proposed to erect at the corner of Second street and Florida avenue northwest. The report of the finance committee, submitted by Chairman Rev. C. D. Ramsdell, showed that of the $2,000 necessary for the first payment on the builder's contract $1,000 had been secured. After some discussion on this point it was generally agreed that the remaining $1,000 would be raised before the first of July, and then the work would be pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the finance committee.

> Mertz's Modern Pharmacy.

Yesterday we stopped with a question. It was: "Why do doctors prefer their prescriptions prepared here?"

The answer is:

Because Mertz's assistants work away from the bustle and rush of the store life; because they are never interrupted in their delicate work to wait on customers; because Mertz's drugs are bought in original quantities, pure and unadulterated.

That's reason enough, say the physicians. The sale is still on!
